

MY WIFE DOES NOT WORK

Conversation between a husband (H) and a psychologist (P):

P: What do you do for a living, Mr. Rogers?

H: I work as an accountant in a bank.

P: And your wife?

H: She doesn't work. She's a housewife.

P: Who makes breakfast for your family?

H: My wife, because she doesn't work.

P: What time does your wife wake?

H: She wakes up early because she has to be organized. She organizes the lunch for the children, ensures that they are dressed and ready, have eaten a nutritious breakfast, have brushed their teeth and have packed all their school supplies. She wakes the baby and changes diapers and clothes. Breastfeeds and makes snacks as well.

P: How do your children get to school?

H: My wife takes them to school, because she doesn't work.

P: After taking their children to school, what does she do?

H: Usually, it takes a while to figure out something that she can do while she is out, so she doesn't have to pack and unpack the car seat too many times. She'll drop off bills or make a stop at the supermarket. Sometimes she forgets something and has to make the trip all over again, baby in tow. Once back home, she has to feed the baby lunch and breastfeed again, get the baby's diaper changed and ready for a nap, sort out the kitchen and then take care of laundry and cleaning the house. You know, because she doesn't work.

P: In the evening, after returning home from the office, what do you do?

H: Rest, of course. Well, I'm tired after working all day in the bank.

P: What does your wife do at night?

H: She makes dinner, serves me and my children, washes the dishes, cleans up the house again, makes sure the dog is put away, and cleans away any dinner leftovers. After helping the children with their homework, she bathes them, dresses them in pajamas, gives warm milk to the baby, and checks that everyone has brushed their teeth. Then, she tucks the children into bed, tells stories, sings songs, and comes back to chase away monsters hiding under the bed. Once in bed, she wakes up frequently to breastfeed and possibly change a diaper if needed while I sleep. Because she doesn't have to get up for work.

-This is the daily routine of many women all over the world, it starts in the morning and continues until the wee hours of the night... This is called "doesn't work"?!

Being a housewife comes with no diplomas, but has a key role in family life!

Enjoy and appreciate your wife, mother, grandma, aunt, sister, daughter... Because their sacrifice is priceless.

Somebody asked her...

Are you a woman who works, or are you 'just' a housewife?

She replied:

I work as a wife of the home, 24 hours a day.

I am a mother,

I am a woman,

I am a daughter,

I am the alarm clock,

I am the cook,

I am the maid,

I am the master,

I am the bartender,

I am the babysitter,

I am a nurse,

I am a manual worker,

I am a security officer,

I am the advisor,

I am the comforter.

I don't have vacation days,

I don't have a licence for disease,

I don't have a day off.

I work day and night,

I'm on duty all the time,

I do not receive salary and...

Even so, I often hear the phrase:

"But what do you do all day?"

Dedicated to all the women who give their lives for the welfare of their families.

The woman is like salt:

Her presence is not remembered, but her absence makes leaves everything without flavour.
